AMY LAIRD A FRANK WIFE.

Told Her Husband She'd Tell Him When He Couldn't Trust Her Any More, and She Did. New York, June 13 .- Horace D. M.

Phillips, an actor, got from Justice. O'Corman yesterday an interlocutory deerce of absolute divures from Amy Laird Phillips, known on the stage as Amy Laird. The defendant was charged with undue intimacy with Harry B, Castle, an actor, in Newark and Knoxville, Tenn. The evidence included two letters written by Mrs. Phillips, one to her hushand and the other to a theatrical agent. To her husband, Mrs. Phillips wante: "I told you that as long as I said so you could trust me, and that if anything came up that you could not do so, I would tell you. Well, the time has come now. I am living with another and have been investigated." and have been since I wrote my last letter, so now you know the truth, and have taken him home and introduced him to mother. I don't ask you to forgive me, but I hope God will always biess you and keep you."

Mrs. Phillips wrote to J. Alexander
Brown, a theatrical agent, as follows: "I have a piece of news for you. I was divorced a year ago and was married last week to Harry B. Castle of the Huntley Stock company. Mr. Castle is a character actor and a good one playing anything in the character line. Of course we want nothing but a joint engagement and can make good. I hope you can fix us for the summer."
